This is a very romantic story about the parallel worlds, which have nothing in common apart from the boundaries. Things that are beautiful in one world are ugly in the other. Things that are alive in one world are soulless weapons of destructive power in the other. Contact is unlikely, understanding is impossible. They are a mystery to each other and a cause for night fears.

Danve, a Heiress to the Throne from Aps-Molar lives in the one world. And the other – the World of the Wall – is impending over her domain, a huge sphere, slowly devouring everything around it. And it's getting even worse when a terrible monster Uch-mechmoe kidnaps her in the midst of the celebration in order to take her beyond the sphere. Not only time goes quite differently in this place. To help an alien prince defeat giant Angoddo, Danve has to turn into a terrible weapon. She falls in love with a creature "from the other side" and finds enough strength to save not only her subjects but the whole universe. And against all odds the impossible all of sudden has become possible...
